

PRIVATE & CONFIDENTIAL · SEED ROUND · AUGUST 2026

DAVID.

The promoter, ticketing platform and marketing engine for the middle of the live music market.

Raising £1m DAVID.TICKETS

Founded by the marketing companies behind Bad Bunny, Raye, Thundercat, The Pixies and Swedish House Mafia.

THE PROBLEM

Touring is broken.

Everybody in the chain is being milked — and the shows still don't sell.

Fans are gouged

Booking fees of 25% and up layered on at checkout — then dynamic pricing on top.

Artists get padded settlements

Towels.

Riders, reps, line items you never asked for and can't remove.

The promoter keeps the data

Not yours.

The artist builds the audience and walks away with nothing.

The marketing is a decade old

2015

Spend fixed low and blind — so tours get papered, cut down and cancelled.

The people who own live music make money whether or not the show sells. So it doesn't.

THE PROOF

When tours stop selling,
we get the call.

RULES · EUROPEAN TOUR 2026

91%
sell-through

Five weeks out. Sales flat.

4 OF 5 SHOWS SOLD OUT · £2.55 COST PER TICKET

ADMT · UK TOUR 2025

81%
sell-through

Ten cities across the UK.

3,522 TICKETS SOLD · ~£77K GROSS (EST.) · £2.59 COST PER TICKET

Tours sit at 4-27% sold when our campaigns switch on. One campaign across every market, one learning loop – a winning creative in Glasgow is live in Paris the next morning.

THE INSIGHT

(Everyone makes money when tickets sell)

THE INSIGHT

We sell more — and charge far less.

THE OLD STACK

~20% of the artist's net — after costs that are avoidable, murky, or padded to maximise their actual take.

25%+ booking fees on top of ticket gross, paid by the fan.

They win even half-empty — so the marketing never has to work.

We sell more tickets, so the gross is bigger. Our fee is smaller. The artist wins on both sides.

DAVID

7% of gross — the only artist-side deduction. Costs at receipted actuals.

13% fan fee on top of face value — it funds the marketing.

AI through everything — routing, marketing and strategy, priced for the future.

THE MODEL

Our only cut is 7% of gross.

The old deal: pad the costs first, then take ~20% of what survives.

SAME SHOW, THREE DEALS

The artist takes home ~45% more – with a floor.

Artist take-home as a share of gross potential, on the same show.

SOLD OUT

80% SOLD

PER SOLD-OUT SHOW

£735 guaranteed minimum per show – 10% of gross potential, paid whatever it sells.

THE SALES ENGINE

Up to 30% of ticket price on marketing – delivered at under £3 a ticket.

AI routing

Tours are planned on the artist's own audience data – dates land where the fans already are.

AI campaign engine

Creative, targeting and budget managed per city, driven to cost-per-ticket. Every market feeds one learning loop.

It compounds

The artist owns every buyer. This tour's audience is next tour's cheapest tickets sold.

MARKETING PER TICKET, ON A £20 TICKET

Committed £6.00

UP TO 30% OF TICKET PRICE

Delivered Under £3.00

ACROSS THE LAST THREE TOURS

Incumbents budget £1.50–2.50

AND SPEND IT BLIND

The gap between committed and delivered goes back to the artist.

WHY NOW

AI makes the middle market servable — for the first time.

Advancing, contracting, settlement, tax and campaign management used to cost more in human hours than a mid-size show could carry. That is why the middle market was abandoned to fragmented local promoters. That cost has collapsed.

4,129

shows a year, run by 10 people.

The Year-5 operating model — possible only because the machine does the advancing, the settlement and the marketing.

Streaming pays ~nothing

Touring is the income now — artists need every pound of it.

Transparency pressure

Fee-disclosure rules are tightening across the UK and EU.

MARKET (EST. — RESEARCH IN PROGRESS)

The middle is most of live music — and nobody runs it at scale.

UK live sector GVA alone

£2.5bn

Europe is a multiple of the UK.

Attendance under 1,500 cap

55%

The middle isn't niche — it's the majority.

Annual revenue pool (est.)

£600m–1bn

European middle-market GBO est. £3–5bn × our 20% take rate.

David at Year 5 — £30.7m revenue from 4,129 shows — is roughly 3–5% of that pool, with no pan-European incumbent to displace. Nobody else can be the promoter, the ticketer and the marketing engine at once without cannibalising their own fees.

GO TO MARKET

Agents own the relationships. AI does the work.

Five Tour Partnerships Managers — one genre space each, ex-booking-agent profile, already holding the relationships with managers and agents.

One point of contact for all of Europe — venue contracting, advancing, withholding tax, settlement and marketing, handled by the platform behind them.

Josh Ergatoudis, our first TPM, is in seat — a career booking agent who founded his own agency.

TEAM

Founded by two marketing companies.

Their collective roster includes Bad Bunny, Raye, Thundercat, The Pixies, Swedish House Mafia and many others.

CEO

PJ Jarrett

Founder of Sweat Strategies, Sweat Entertainment and Reel:lab. Technical lead — designed and built the David platform end to end.

Co-founder

Tom Rose

CEO of Grape (formerly Propeller) — artist services across the UK, Germany and Norway: radio & PR, management, label services.

Co-founder · CMO

Tobi Steinborn

Co-founder of Sweat Strategies. Marketing lead — ran the campaigns behind Rules at £2.55 a ticket and 3,522 ADMT tickets at £2.59.

Tour Partnerships Mgr

Josh Ergatoudis

Career booking agent — founded his own agency before joining as the first of the five TPMs.

THE ASK

£1m to go loud.

01

Five TPMs

Hired hard and fast — they are the constraint on how many tours the platform can carry.

02

The build finished

Advancing, settlement and tax through the machine rather than through people.

03

The engine pointed at the market

The campaigns that sold out nine shows, run across a book of tours instead of a handful.

We aren't here to whisper. Touring is broken — we're fixing it.
