DAVID.

The combined promoter, ticketing platform and marketing engine for the live music market.

DAVID.TICKETS

THE PROBLEM

Touring is broken.

Everybody in the chain is overpaying — and the shows still don't sell.

Fans are fleeced

Booking fees of 25% and up layered on at checkout — then dynamic pricing on top.

Artists get padded settlements

Towels.

Riders, reps, line items you never asked for and can't remove.

The promoter keeps the data

Not yours.

The artist builds the audience and walks away with nothing.

The marketing is a decade old

2015

Spend fixed low and blind — so tours get papered, cut down and cancelled.

The people who own live music make money whether or not the show sells. So it doesn't.

THE PROOF

When tours stop selling, their teams already call us.

RULES · EUROPEAN TOUR 2026

91% sell-through

Five weeks out. Sales flat.

4 OF 5 SHOWS SOLD OUT · £2.55 COST PER TICKET

ADMT · UK TOUR 2025

92% sell-through

Ten cities across the UK.

3,522 TICKETS SOLD · ~£77K GROSS (EST.) · £2.59 COST PER TICKET

The artists' teams bring us in. Both of these were Live Nation and AEG tours that had stopped selling. These shows were sitting at 4–27% sell-through before our marketing started.

One campaign across every market, one learning loop — a winning creative in Glasgow is live in Paris the next morning.

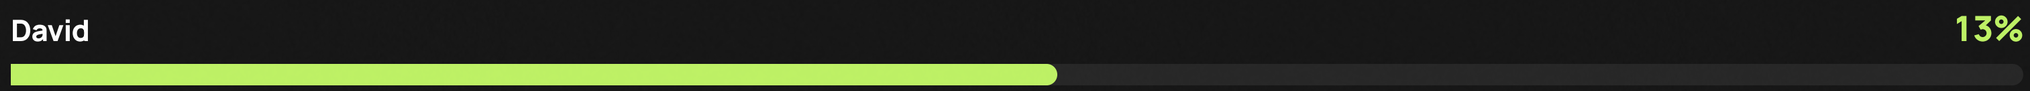
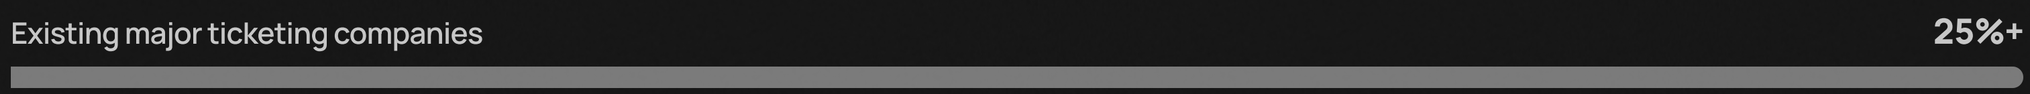
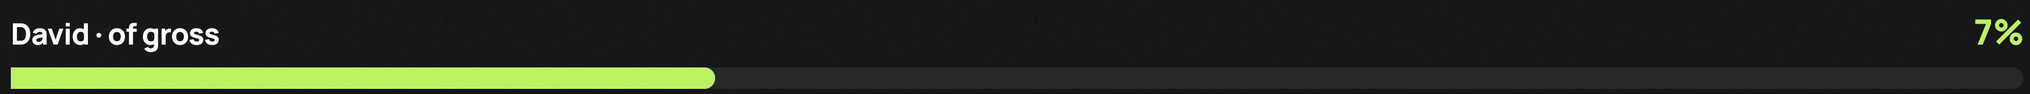
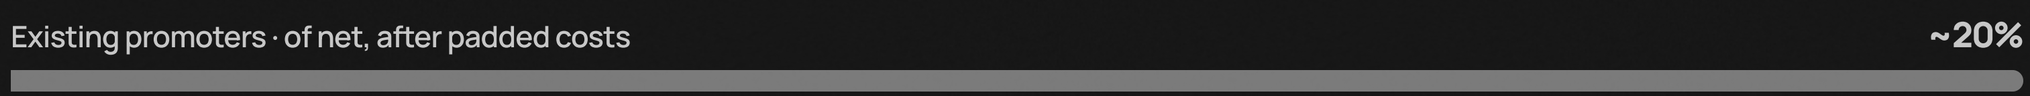
WHAT THE FAN PAYS ON TOP OF FACE VALUE





WHAT COMES OUT OF THE ARTIST'S SIDE





Ours is the only artist-side deduction, and costs are deducted from receipted actuals. Existing promoters deduct their cost from deflated income padded to protect their share.

Existing promoters are paid even if venues are half-empty, so the marketing never has to work. The artist wins on both sides.

THE MODEL

Our only cut of the artist's revenue is 7% of gross.

STEP 01

Fan pays face value +13%

The fee sits on top of the ticket — against 25%+ elsewhere — and funds the marketing.

STEP 02

Costs come off at actuals

Receipted, zero markup. Optional lines are the artist's call. No towels.

STEP 03

David takes 7% of gross

That's it. No profit split, no back end, no hidden spend.

STEP 04

The rest is the artist's

Weekly payouts from real sales. Itemised settlement within 7 days.

The old deal: pad the costs first, then take ~20% of what survives.

THE SALES ENGINE

Our spend is more effective, and rooms are fuller.

Allocated spend per ticket is the measure that matters, and £2 into a half-empty room is not value — it is a budget too small to work, spent on targeting built years ago.

AI routing

We connect the artist's own audience data — streaming, socials, past ticket buyers — and route the tour to the cities that data points at, rather than to the rooms a promoter happens to hold.

AI campaign engine

Creative, targeting and budget per city, driven to the cost of a ticket actually sold. Every market feeds one loop.

It compounds

The artist owns every buyer. This tour's audience is next tour's cheapest tickets sold.

WHY NOW

AI makes the middle market servable — for the first time.

Advancing, contracting, settlement, tax and campaign management used to cost more in human hours than a mid-size show could carry. That is why the middle market was abandoned to fragmented local promoters. That cost has collapsed.

4,080

shows a year, run by 12 people.

The Year-5 operating model — possible only because the machine does the advancing, the settlement and the marketing.

The supply is growing

Streaming pays close to nothing, so artists tour more and tour earlier. More shows every year, and nobody is serving the middle of them.

The fee model is exposed

Disclosure rules tightening across the UK and EU put a 25%+ booking fee on the wrong side of the regulator. Ours is 13%.

The window is open

No pan-European operator of the middle market exists — and the incumbents cannot build one without cannibalising their own fees.

THE BUSINESS

A market nobody serves, And a plan to serve it

2026 DAVID. All rights reserved.

COMPETITION

Nobody else is paid to fill the room.

Ticketing platforms are a checkout — they sell to the people who are already coming. Promoters take the room and take the risk, but filling it falls to the artist: it is the artist's own socials, on the artist's own time, that do the marketing. Neither of them loses anything on a half-empty room.

Ticketing Ticketmaster · AXS · DICE · See Tickets	No	No	No
Promoters Live Nation · AEG · local promoters	No	No	Partial
DAVID The marketing is the product	Yes	Yes	Yes

Ticketing earns on tickets and does nothing to sell them. Promoters take the risk and get paid either way, and leave the artist to market their own show. We are the only one doing both jobs — and at 7% of gross plus the booking fee, every ticket that goes unsold is our revenue too.

MARKET

The middle is most of live music — and nobody runs it at scale.

UK live sector GVA alone

£2.5bn

Europe is a multiple of the UK.

Share of UK live attendance

55%

is in rooms under 1,500 capacity. The middle isn't niche — it's the majority.

Annual revenue pool

£600m–1bn

No pan-European incumbent to displace.

David at Year 5 — £30.7m revenue from 4,080 shows — is roughly 3–5% of that pool, with no pan-European incumbent to displace. Nobody else can be the promoter, the ticketer and the marketing engine at once without cannibalising their own fees.

Sector figures: UK Music. The revenue pool is our own estimate — European middle-market gross box office of £3–5bn at our 20% take rate — and is the one number on this slide we have derived rather than sourced.

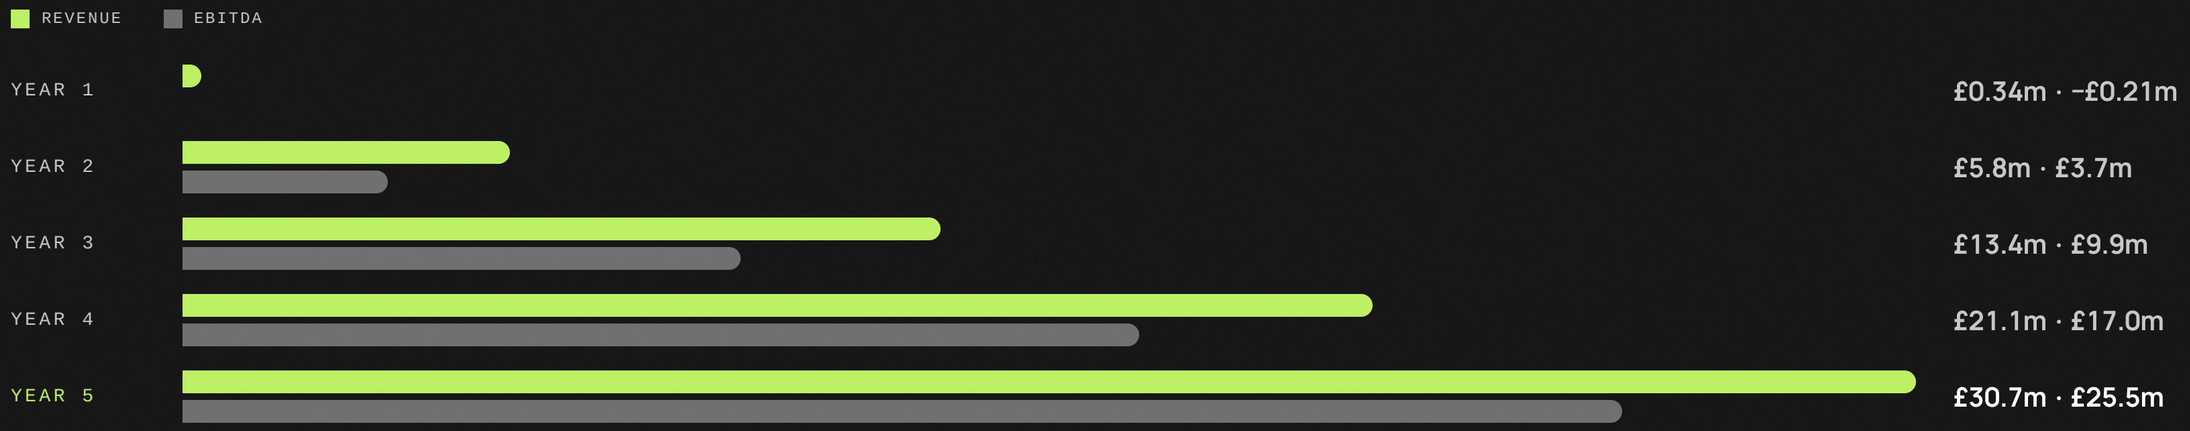
THE PLAN · PHASED AUTOMATION

£30.7m of revenue and 83% margins by Year 5.

We take 20% of gross box office — 13% from the fan as a booking fee, 7% from the artist. The margin comes from the operating model: the same twelve people run four thousand shows as run four hundred, because the AI does the routing, the advancing, the settlement, the tax and the campaign management.



Cash-generative from November 2027, EBITDA-positive in December. The margin climbs because the roadmap does: 63% while the desk is ours, 83% once the artist's team runs it.

GO TO MARKET

Agents own the relationships. AI does the work.

Six Tour Partnerships Managers — one genre space each, ex-booking-agent profile, already holding the relationships with managers and agents.

One point of contact for all of Europe — venue contracting, advancing, withholding tax, settlement and marketing, handled by the platform behind them.

THE MATHS

6 TPMs

×20 dates a tour

YEAR 2	×13 tours each	1,560	shows
YEAR 5	×34 tours each	4,080	shows

The same six people. One tour a month each today, three a month by Year 5 — that is the roadmap, not more hiring. Both totals are six people times the tours they carry.

TEAM

Founded by two marketing companies.

Their collective roster includes Bad Bunny, Raye, Thundercat, The Pixies, Swedish House Mafia and many others.

Co-CEO

PJ Jarrett

Founder of Sweat Strategies, Sweat Entertainment and Reel:lab. Technical lead — designed and built the David platform end to end.

Co-CEO

Tom Rose

CEO of Grape (formerly Propeller) — artist services across the UK, Germany and Norway: radio & PR, management, label services.

Co-founder · CMO

Tobi Steinborn

Co-founder of Sweat Strategies. Marketing lead — ran the campaigns behind Rules at £2.55 a ticket and 3,522 ADMT tickets at £2.59.

PJ and Tom each own companies with seven figure annual revenues. Between them they have spent their careers brokering the deals that put artists into these rooms — which is the part of this business that cannot be built, only known.

THE ASK

£1m to go loud.

It bankrolls the tours, the agent hires and the marketing, and it finishes the build that phases two and three depend on.

Team ahead of revenue

£215k

The booking team and the directors, from the raise until trading revenue carries them. Five TPMs and a head of department are the constraint on how many tours we can take.

Product, data and AI

£236k

The platform is live and selling, and it is nowhere near finished. Routing, the data learning that makes it better every tour, and the automation that phases two and three depend on are all still to build.

Tour float & contingency

£97k + £171k

Show marketing goes out months before the box office settles. This is the working capital that lets us front it.

Market entry

£150k

Eurosonic, The Great Escape, ADE, Reeperbahn, IMS — and B2B marketing every month in between.

Licences & setup

£131k

FCA payments opinion, contract templates, and VAT and tax registration in every territory we sell in.

David is forecasting to be cash generative by the end of 2027, so funding can be split between equity or debt.
