ARTISTS & MANAGEMENT • 2026

We run all of it.

Streaming, live, TikTok, YouTube, merch — and the CRM underneath them.
One team buying every channel the way that channel actually works.

(Every platform gets bought the same way)

A conversion campaign is the right answer on two of these channels and the wrong answer on the rest.

A ticket link converts. A store page converts. A TikTok doesn't — there is nothing at the end of it to buy, so the campaign optimises towards a click that was never worth anything. Budget gets spread evenly across platforms that behave nothing like each other, and it comes back as one number that hides which half of it worked.

One team across every platform. Each one bought the way it actually works.

01

One operation

Streaming, live, TikTok, YouTube, merch and CRM, run by the same people against the same numbers.

02

Tested, not assumed

The same discipline behind every channel: many variants, cold audiences, and the winner takes the budget.

03

A single read

One place to see what every pound did, rather than four reports that count things differently.

04

An audience you own

Every campaign feeds a list you keep, not a follower count you rent.

WHAT WE RUN

Every channel, bought its own way.

CRM & fan flow

Paid media, the creative testing behind it, and the CRM that keeps what it buys. What follows is the streaming method first, because it is the one with the longest record behind it, then the same discipline everywhere else.

(How we find the hit?)

01 Find the sound

We test every part of the record to see which seconds actually stop someone scrolling.

BONOB0

02 Test the content at scale

Dozens of variations per record, made by our editors, running against cold audiences in every market that matters.

DISCLOSURE

03 Validate the cost

Every test returns a real cost per new listener. That number decides what gets the budget and what gets dropped.

04 Scale what converts

Budget follows the number, reallocated daily, country by country, for as long as it keeps paying.

BLOND:ISH

PAID MEDIA · 01 OF 04

Live

Conversion campaigns, run against the ticket link.

Tickets are one of the two places where a conversion objective is the right call, so that is what we run — and we run it on tested creative rather than on the tour asset. Where there are promoter partners we work alongside their activity rather than around it, so the same audience isn't being bought twice at twice the price.

01

Conversion campaigns

Optimised to the ticket sold, not to the click.

02

Testing content

Creative tested the way we test a record, before the budget goes behind it.

03

Promoter partners

Run with the promoter rather than against them, so the spend compounds instead of colliding.

SHOWS WE'VE WORKED ON WITH

Live Nation

AEG

Communion One

Conversion campaigns don't work here. Backing the winners does.

There is nothing at the end of a TikTok to convert, so a conversion objective just buys clicks that go nowhere. What works is finding the post that already earned attention on its own and putting money behind it, aimed at the audience it earned — or going around paid media entirely and seeding the record through our influencer networks.

01

Boost the best performers

Money goes behind the posts that have already proven they hold attention.

02

Audience targeting

Aimed at the audience the post actually found, not at a demographic guess.

03

Influencer seeding

Our own networks, for when the record needs to be in other people's videos rather than in an ad.

PAID MEDIA · 03 OF 04

YouTube

Engagement and reach, to generate traction.

Not a conversion channel either. YouTube is where a release gets watched and picked up, so the campaigns are built for engagement and reach rather than pointed at a link — enough of the right people in front of it for traction to start.

01

Engagement campaigns

Built to get watched and interacted with, which is what the platform rewards.

02

Reach campaigns

Impressions against the audiences that matter, at the volume it takes to register.

PAID MEDIA · 04 OF 04

Merch

Funnels, drops, and the store behind them.

Paid traffic is only worth sending somewhere that converts, so we take the whole path rather than just the campaign pointing at it: the funnel built and tested end to end, the drop planned and measured, and the Shopify store itself under management.

01

Funnels

Built and tested from the ad through to the checkout.

02

Drop optimisation

Planned, timed and measured, so a launch is not a single day of guessing.

03

Shopify store management

The store run as part of the work, not handed back as someone else's problem.

(The audience you actually own)

A follower is rented. An email address isn't.

Every platform decides who sees you and changes its mind without telling anyone. A list you built yourself is the only audience that survives that, and the only one you can reach on the day a record, a tour or a drop goes live.

So there is a capture underneath everything else in this deck. The paid media buys the attention; the CRM is what keeps it. Here is the flow we build, end to end.

From a new follower to a real conversation.

Every step after the first one runs on its own. The artist writes the voice note once.

CRM · STEP 06

“Hey — obviously this was automated. But I’m a real person, and I’m glad you’re here. I’m in my DMs if you want to say hey.”

Admitting the automation is the only version of this that survives a fan who can tell — and it ends in the artist's actual voice with an open door. By that point they have an exclusive nobody else has, and they're on a list the artist keeps.

A dashboard, daily.
Not a monthly report.

Sweat.fm is our own platform, not a third-party dashboard. Every campaign, every cost per result, every market, updated daily and visible to your whole team — so nobody is waiting on a deck to find out what the money did.

THE ENGAGEMENT

Pricing is scoped to the work.

No tiers. At this level the mix is different for everyone – a tour on sale, a record cycle, a store doing real numbers, or all three inside the same quarter. A fixed package either overcharges for the quiet months or under-resources the loud ones.

Tell us what's coming and what it needs to do, and we'll come back with a scope, a plan per channel and a number.

01

What's coming

The next twelve months – releases, tour, drops, and what's already committed.

02

What's running now

Where the spend sits today, who is placing it, and what it's returning.

03

What it has to do

The number that would make the year a success, so the plan is built backwards from it.

Let's have the conversation.

01

A call about the next twelve months.

02

We look at what's running now and what it's returning.

03

A scope, a plan per channel, and a number.

04

First campaigns live.
