You've got a catalogue. Somewhere in it there might be one that changes everything.

You could put $30,000 behind the one you love most and learn nothing — not whether it was the record, the audience or the creative. Then do it again on the next one, starting from zero.

That isn't a music problem. It's an information problem, and it's the cheapest one you'll ever have to fix.

And it isn't one project.

The pop records and the club records want different audiences, different creative and different names. Put them on the same project and you blunt both.

On top of that, you can't be the face of it. So the identity has to do the work your face would normally do. That's a build, not a logo.

We test every record you've got.

Up to 20. We could do everything you've got now, plus anything you write in the next three months — you make records three hours a day from the gym, and that costs you nothing extra in fees. Only ad spend.

At the end of three months you'll know whether you've got a record that can scale, and exactly what it costs to push it. If you haven't got one yet, we'll tell you that too, and why.

01 Find the sound

We test every part of the record to see which seconds actually stop someone scrolling.

BONOBO

02 Test the content at scale

Dozens of variations per record, made by our editors, running against cold audiences in every market that matters.

03 Validate the cost

Every test returns a real cost per new listener. That number decides what gets the budget and what gets dropped.

04 Scale what converts

Budget follows the number, reallocated daily, country by country, for as long as it keeps paying.

Most of these won't be the one.

We'll tell you which ones aren't, in days rather than quarters, and move to the next record on the list.

Plenty of agencies will spend a marketing budget for as long as you keep approving it. We won't.

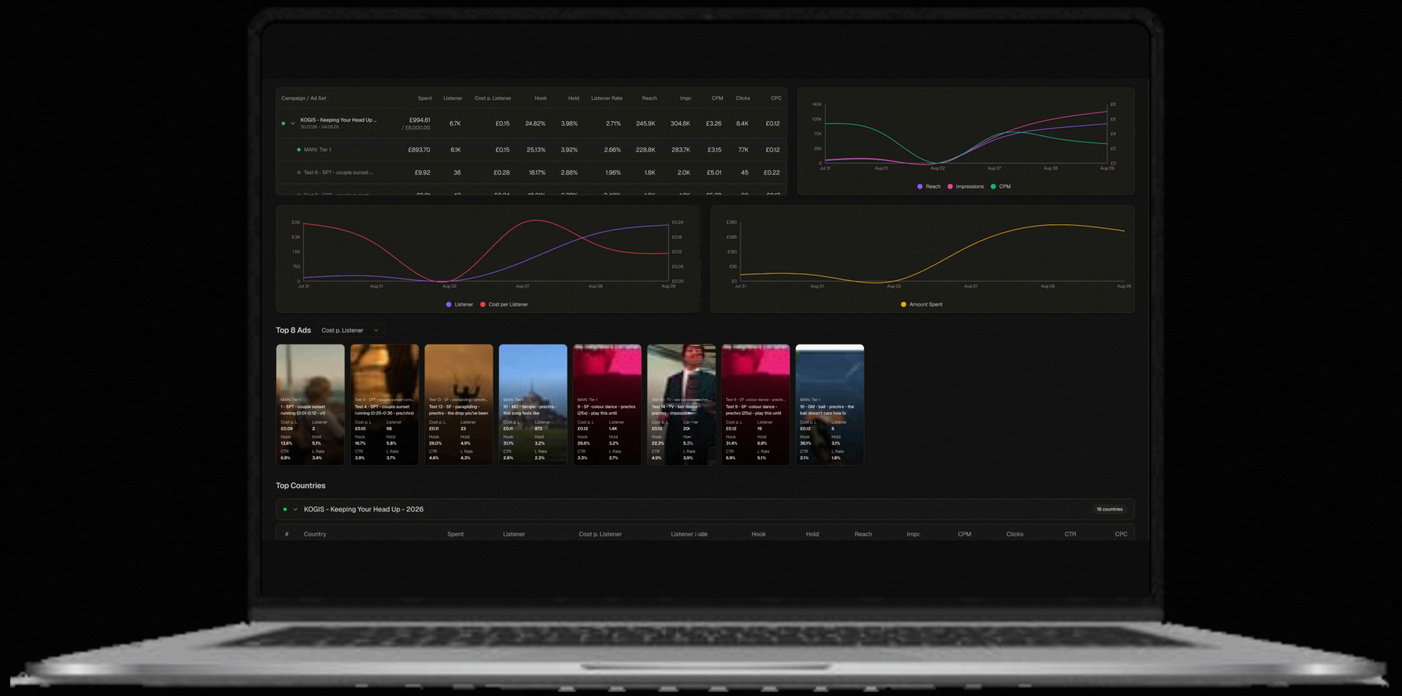

The value isn't in the record we scale. It's in the ones we stop.

A dashboard, daily.

Every record on it.

Sweat.fm is our own platform, not a third-party dashboard. Every test, every cost per new listener, every market, updated daily. You will never have to ask us how it's going.

KID APOLLO

$6,000 for (3) three months.

Up to 20 songs.

Ad spend on top — roughly $250 per track to get a clean read.

01

Sign off and send the audio — that's all we need to start.

02

We split the records into two projects and build the matrix.

03

First tests live within a week.

04

Ninety days later, you'll know.

When we find your record

We put it everywhere it converts.

A record that works on one platform rarely stops there. Once the tests tell us what's landing, we take the winning creative and put budget behind it across every channel that can turn a listener into a fan.

SCALE IT

20% on ad spend above $5,000 a month. Below $5,000 a month there's no scaling fee at all. We push as hard as the data says we should.

CHANNELS WE RUN

A record that works needs somewhere to land.

Two identities. The pop project and the club project, built separately so neither dilutes the other. Artwork, Spotify visuals, and a brand strong enough to front the whole thing so you never have to.

Real production and real vocals, commissioned on any record that earns them. Distribution handled.

Two ways to do it — your call which suits you.

ROUTE A

$4,000 per project, plus $4,000 per song. Two projects is $8,000 to build both identities. You own everything outright.

ROUTE B

25% in perpetuity on royalties. We carry the creative cost, handle distribution, and only make money when you do.

Both routes are separate to the testing and paid media fees on page 16.
